0002A	"National Institute For The Promotion of Science; 1840"; leather bound ledger. This is an important historical, scientific and cultural artifact. Every page and piece of paper has been photographed. The National Institute was the initial repository for collections of artifacts brought to the U.S. by the United States Exploring Expedition of 1838, as well as various other objects accumulated by the government, such as items owned by early American politicians, patent models, and natural objects. There is an entry on page 25 that records the transfer of a desk used by George Washington to the Institute, as Directed by the President of the United States, with a signature of Z. Taylor. The signature has not been authenticated, but it does appear to be in a hand other than the recording secretary. Such artifacts were the precursor to the Smithsonian Institution collection. 0004	FAMILY RESEARCH - DO NOT BID There is much history in the material in this auction, as the names Olcott, McAllister, Stetson, Semple, Barry all contributed in important ways to the building of the present. Long before the days of ancestry.com, each generation preserved their place in history by recording and storing their stories. We are presenting all bidders the hundreds of photos we have taken to capture that history. If you have an interest in this material, it appears at the end of the auction as Lot 501. BID THERE - NOT HERE....and yes, the family, my client, has poured over all of this.... (80 photos)
